Herald: Honor is more than renown or reputation; honor can be said to be the daily exercise of one's ethical integrity and nobility of mind. Whether warrior, artisan or servant of the principality, each individual's honor is expressed in the manner in which they live their lives. There may come a time when one's honor may be tested and one may have to serve that honor to one's own detriment. In the reign of Reinar and Ellisif, the Coronet was moved to recognize those individuals whose display of integrity and honor inspire all. Let _____ come now before Their Highnesses.

(The named individual comes forward and kneels before Their Highnesses.)

 Prince: In you, _____ we are well pleased for you have been an example of honor by virtue of _____. (His Highness extols the recipient's honor by citing specific examples that brought about cause for special recognition.)

 Princess: (The Princess places the Circlet of Honor on the head of the recipient.)

Let all know by this circlet that you are worthy of great praise in that you have displayed integrity in word and deed. (Her Highness should likewise add comments here.)

Herald: For _____, recipient of the Circlet of Honor, Hip, hip!

 Prince: You have Our leave to depart.
